Community Chest Checks Go Out

The climax of the first year's activity for the Washington C. H. and Fayette County Community Chest came here Friday afternoon, when checks totaling $8,408.81 were distributed to beneficiary agencies.

These checks, together with two others already passed out, brought the total amount of distributions thus far to $11,653.20. This represents approximately 90 per cent of the total budget asked by the agencies.

To date the chest has collected $14,250 and the money continues to come in bit by bit as delayed pledges are made.

At its last meeting the chest board of directors decided to make the lump sum payment of 90 per cent of the budget Friday afternoon. Later other payments will be made.

Perse Harlow, the executive secretary, said chest leaders are hopeful that it will be possible to pay each agency 100 per cent of the amount which each asked.

He said the clean-up of unsolicited cards and delayed pledges will get underway next week. The clean-up will include personal visitation to some of the potential givers, he indicated.

Sometime in January the chest will issue a full statement of its finances for publication.

The board of directors also plans to draft a letter of thanks. Copies will be sent to every person who worked on the campaign. At their last meeting, members of the Board of Directors, expressed their appreciation by citing the "splendid job done in making the first Chest campaign a success."

More Money Sought For Lustron Corp.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31—(P)—The Lustron Corporation's pre-fabricated housing project may be rescued financially with private capital, high officials in the reconstruction finance corporation hinted yesterday.

These same officials looked coolly on Lustron's plan to seek more government millions.

President Carl G. Strandlund seemed "very optimistic" when he announced Thursday "it is logical to be hopeful" of getting more RFC money, he said.

The RFC, earlier this week, said it had halted loans to the Columbus, O., firm. It contended Lustron already owes the RFC $37,500,000 and "is in default" on $22,000,000 of the amount.

On Job Nine Hours
The Washington C. H. fire truck was on the job for almost nine hours attempting to keep the fire from spreading to other buildings. But fire ate its way into a large shed and a corncrib, containing 1,200 bushels of corn.

Part of the shed was saved and most of the corn in it. But it required constant work on the part of the firemen, who did not return to the department building until about 5 P. M. Sunday.

Fire Chief Hall declared afterwards: "If we had been there three to five minutes sooner we could have whipped the fire."

He said the first five minutes tell whether or not fire fighters can "whip" the fire.

For this reason, Fire Chief Hall said it was important for adequate communications to be set up so that there is no delay in notifying fire departments of conflagrations.

And along this line, it is important too, Fire Chief Hall said, for departments to maintain radio communications with each other.

Even with the best of communications, however, Fire Chief Hall (Please turn to Page Three)

Judge Sues For Pay

TIFFIN, Dec. 31—(P)—Probate Judge C. C. McKay's suit for back pay as a juvenile judge ended yesterday. A. B. Grossman, Seneca County auditor, paid the jurist $1,033 on the recommendation of Prosecutor Webb Tomb. The suit was filed Dec. 13 in the third district court of appeals.

12 Percent Corn Acreage Cut Is Called for by Government

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31—(P)—The government, holding $3,000,000,000 in farm surpluses, today asked corn and rice growers to join producers of other major crops in cutting production next year.

Lower Prices Loom On Several Leading Food Items in 1950

Small Drop Occurs During Past Year And Downward Trend Is Continuing

By JACK R. RYAN

NEW YORK, Dec. 31—(P)—America's food bill went down a bit in 1949 and seems likely to ease a little more in the new year.

The decline was partly because retail food prices averaged nearly four percent lower, partly because per capita food consumption dropped slightly as people spent a larger proportion of their incomes on things like automobiles and rent. Hopes for lower overall food prices in 1950 are pinned on prospects for greater supplies of a few major items. Pork, for example, may reach a peacetime high for abundance. Lower price tags on most dairy products, poultry and eggs, potatoes, fresh vegetables and apples may also help bring the average down. Vigorous competition among food dealers will be another factor.

No sharp reduction is expected, however. Government price supporting will limit declines on several commodities. And food packers say there's little change of major changes for most of their products because many manufacturers' costs still are going up.

"Labor costs account for more than 50 per cent of the spread between what the farmer gets for his crops and what the consumer pays for the finished product," says Paul S. Willis, president of grocery manufacturers of America. Its 350 member companies for another 85 per cent of the nation's processed foods.

"In our food processing plants hourly wages are four per cent above 1948. Transportation costs have gone up 10 per cent in the last year. Rent, machinery and equipment, and packaging materials all trend upward."

The food industry's 1949 dollar sales in food stores were about $30,200,000,000 the GMA estimates, or about $3,000,000 below the previous year.

The decline was due to lower prices rather than to decreased tonnage sales, the trade association says. An manufacturers' net profit per dollar of sales dropped from 3 cents in 1948 to 2.9 cents in 1949. They were 4.5 cents ten years ago.

Highlight of 1949 in the food price-and-supply news was the steep climb in coffee prices touched off in September by concern over anticipated shortages next spring. Word of a long drought

Food Cost In Columbus Is Down 1.5 Percent
CHICAGO, Dec. 31—(P)—The Agriculture Department said yesterday the cost of food in Columbus dropped 1.5 per cent between mid-October and mid-November. But, said the department, food costs in the Ohio Capital are still 105.2 per cent higher than in mid-August, 1939, and 32.6 per cent above June 15, 1946.

highest of moral ideals, and yet no constitutional provision was ever more fundamentally sound and practical.

"While by no sophistry of reasoning can it be interpreted as complete negation of the inalienable right of self-defense against unprovoked attack, it is a ringing affirmation by a people laid prostrate by the sword, of faith in the ultimate triumph of international morality and justice without resort to the sword."

"It must be understood, however, that so long as predatory international banditry is permitted to roam the earth to crush human freedom under its avarice and violence, the highest concept to which you are pledged will be slow in finding universal acceptance. But it is axiomatic that there must always be a first in all things.

Uranium Discovered In Michigan, Belief
LANSING, Mich., Dec. 31—(P)—Michigan has 13 "suspected discoveries" of uranium ore.

This disclosure today stirred cautious speculation whether Michigan may become the first important source of the raw material of atomic energy in the United States.

At the same time prospectors were warned to stay out till spring.

Michigan's wild upper peninsula, famed for minerals, is the region in question.

The first of the strikes of radioactive rock was announced yesterday.

Jones and Laughlin Ore Co. said the Atomic Energy Commission had authorized further exploration of a find in northeastern Baraga County, a remote eastern portion of the storied peninsula.

Farmers Take To Air, Recent Survey Shows

Business Flying In U. S. Shows Gain In Recent Years

Businessmen and farmers of today have found a common solution to problems occasioned by the air age—they fly.

In a current survey conducted by the Personal Aircraft Council, business executives, farmers and ranchers attribute to their use of personal aircraft a general expansion of business operations and particularly in the agricultural field, opportunity for greater participation in social and civic activities.

Thousands of personal and executive aircraft ranging from two-place planes to multi-engine transport are achieving a remarkable record of utility and safety in the hands of these non-professional operators.

The Council survey, results of which are summarized in a booklet, "Plane Utility," brought forth responses from 110 varied business occupations in addition to the agricultural segment.

William B. Belden, assistant counsel, Republic Steel Corporation, and chairman of the Corporation Aircraft Owners Association, commenting upon the results of the survey, stated:

"There could be no more substantial testimonial to the growth in the daily operations of industry and commerce than the underlying theme of 'utility' running through the numerous comments quoted in this booklet."

It is extremely gratifying to those of us who saw, early in the post-war era, that the dominant role of aircraft in the war pointed the way to an equally dominant role in peace."

Charles Rose of Roseland, Arkansas, president of the National Flying Farmers Association, commented in similar vein.

A Civil Aeronautics Administration survey recently published under the title "Aircraft Use in 1948" shows a substantial increase in business flying as "the most encouraging aspect of the 1948 private flying picture."

2 1/2 Million Hours

Business flying, which includes not only flying for corporate or executive purposes but flying by individuals, including farmers on personal business, totaled 2,576,000 hours, compared with 1,966,000 hours in 1947. This was a gain of 31 percent, and marked the second consecutive year that business flying has registered the largest proportionate gain of any type of flying.

Approximately 32,110 aircraft were engaged in business flying. This was 36 percent of the total.

Milk Production On the Upgrade

American dairymen turned the corner of short supply of fluid milk for 1949 by the first week in December, according to C. F. Christian, extension specialist in marketing at Ohio State University.

Although faced with a water shortage, New York City residents found their milk supply was 21 percent above that of the same week in 1948. Some southern cities were fully supplied by nearby producers; these same cities, at this time of year, usually pull milk from the middle west.

Butter and cheese production was also on the increase, Christian said, with the volume above the five-year average.

Activities On the Farm

By THOMAS E. BERRY
BIG APPLE CROP

I just learned from George Karnes, owner of the Karnes Orchard in eastern Highland County, that he had the largest apple crop this year that he has ever had on his 50 acre orchard.

This orchard was built up from an original planting of about three acres of old trees. By using the best methods of culture, spraying and marketing of fruit, Mr. and Mrs. Karnes have been able to build up a flourishing business through the years and they have reared a large family.

BROME SEDGE LAND

"Brome sedge land is not necessarily poor land," a very successful farmer pointed out this week, when we were looking at one of the larger better farms that we have for sale. "I know that brome sedge grows on very poor land, where other grasses will hardly grow, but it will also grow on the best land," he explained.

"The field across the road where there is so much brome sedge is one of the best fields on the farm," he said. "I was glad to get this timely information, because the man who was considering buying the farm thought that he might not like it."

Brome sedge can be killed by liming the land, fertilizing and clipping early in June, and again probably late in July. This has been well demonstrated by the Murphy dairy farm at Seaman, Ohio, where a large field that was once covered with brome sedge, is now providing some of the best pasture that you will find in Adams County. There is a pond in this field with a basin large enough to keep it well filled, even in very dry weather.

FOUR YEAR ROTATION FOR JOHNSON GRASS

"A four year rotation will kill Johnson grass, if you clip the pasture," a neighbor just told me, and then he gave me the name of a man who controlled it this way. I haven't had time to call on him yet, but I will do this in the near future.

LANCASTER GARDEN CLUB

I recently had the pleasure of visiting with a member of the Lancaster Garden Club, during the banquet arranged for Joe Hiestand in Hillsboro. I was very much interested in learning that the club is very active. They are trying to create and develop more interest in home beautification, and the raising of more cut flowers and annuals and perennials for the home. I took pretty accurate notes during the visit, and now I can't find them. Will the member of the Lancaster Garden Club who gave me the information I used about this work, write me and tell me again about some of your projects, and your aims. I am sorry I lost the notes, so willingly given to me. Send me some more, and I'll try not to lose them. Thank you.

Seed Supply Will be Good

No Need to Worry Says Agronomist

Plentiful supplies of most farm seeds for 1950 plantings in Ohio were forecast here today by D. F. Beard, extension agronomist at Ohio State University.

Two new bulletins to help farmers select and find the seeds they want are being forwarded this week to agricultural agents in every county of the state, he said.

One of these bulletins, Crop Varieties and Hybrids, lists the recommended varieties for each area of the state; while the other, Ohio Certified Field Crop Seeds, lists the names and addresses of farmers whose 1949 seed production was eligible for certification, based on inspections of the crop on the farm.

Cautioning farmers to buy seed on the basis of what has been tested and proved to be good, Beard warned them to avoid buying "what some slick salesman who knows how to put on the pressure can talk him into."

He declared that "the day the Ohio farmer buys his seed corn he will make as much money as he will any other day of the year. Many corn hybrids look like they will yield great gains but when the corn is weighed, a short-shanked, compact ear hybrid may beat the good-looking by 10 to 15 bushels per acre."

Seed supplies generally are good, the agronomist said, although grass seeds, such as brome-grass and timothy, are small and will be high in price.

Seed oats, will be light in weight, but he added "Bushel weight means nothing in seed oats if the seed is sound, has a high germination, and is of a variety known to be adapted."

Red clover probably will be the most scarce of the legume seeds in Ohio. Beard suggested farmers reduce the amount used in mixtures, replacing it with ladino clover or alfalfa.

How to Prevent Disease in Swine

"Keep hog houses dry and well ventilated and avoid costly swine disease outbreaks this winter."

That advice came today from the American Foundation for Animal Health, which said proper ventilation can sometimes mean the difference between profit and loss in swine raising operations.

The Foundation report said: "Damp, overcrowded hog houses are fertile ground for such diseases as pneumonia, pleurisy and flu."

"Large amounts of water are given off in the breath of each animal. Unless provisions are made for ventilation, dampness becomes a progressively worse problem as winter goes on."

The Foundation cautioned, however, that a ventilating system free from drafts should be worked out, since drafts can do as much harm as over-warm, stale air.

GASOLINE IN SEWERS—Several hundred gallons of gasoline were spilled into the sewers from a Standard Oil plant, and caused fumes to enter many places through the sewers.

Report of Fayette Extension Service Shows Much Activity

The annual report of the Fayette County Extension Service shows that a wide program of activities, aimed at making better farmers and homemakers of Fayette County's rural residents was carried out in 1949.

The report, released today by the extension service, states that people in Fayette County "cooperated to an unusual degree in the use of services available to them through the county extension program."

This, the report states, was somewhat remarkable since the number of rural families has been decreasing.

Outstanding accomplishments are listed as follows in a summary of the report:

"Outstanding accomplishments were made in the field of the livestock industry, in the production of livestock on better limed and fertilized pastures. A greater amount of alfalfa and ladino clover was in the meadow and pasture mixtures, making available an abundance of good pastures for cheap gains on all species of livestock."

"Tours of livestock, meadows and pastures, farm management, equipment and machinery were held throughout the year. Over 600 farmers participated in all these tours and visited some 75 farms."

1400 Farm Families Reached

"Some 1400 farmers' families were reached and influenced through the extension program. There was a notable increase in the coordination of the farm and home program in the county during the year."

"Greatly improved office facilities became available to the extension staff during the year. The Farm Bureau completed a new office building during the year and set up four very fine rooms for the extension service. In addition, there is available a fine auditorium with a seating capacity of 150. Also, a modern kitchen is available."

"The rural-urban relationships have improved as the year progressed. Continued high prices of food to the consumer with a lowering of farm prices has caused some consumers to wonder why retail food prices couldn't come worked closely with the Service down in proportion."

"The extension service has worked closely with the Service Club, Chamber of Commerce, Community Chest and Friends of the Land."

"Five hundred seventy-one different boys and girls enrolled in this year in the county. Eighty-six hundred thirty-two projects of seven per cent completed their work. The club members came from 443 farm homes and 148 non-farm homes."

"This phase of extension teaching reaches better than twenty-

Milking Machine Clinics Announced

Schedule of milking machine clinics in 12 Ohio counties was announced here today by Perry Ellsworth, extension specialist in dairy technology at Ohio State University.

At these clinics, specialists will demonstrate the correct installation of milking machines as well as the proper operation and maintenance and the methods of cleaning.

Importance of "managed milking" will be stressed as a means of preventing udder injury and mastitis, Ellsworth said.

Dates of the clinics in the various counties are as follows: Champaign, Clark, January 11; Champaign, January 12; Knox, January 26; Stark, January 27; Ottawa, January 30; Sandusky, January 31; Crawford, February 2; Huron, February 3; Putnam, February 15; Van Wert, February 17; Montgomery, February 28, and Preble, March 1.

Much Plowing Done So Far This Winter

So far a great deal of ground has been broken in this community for next spring's planting, and indications are that near a record amount of soil has been turned before the first of the new year.

Much plowing has been done recently after the frozen ground thawed sufficiently to be turned by the gang plows with tractor motive power.

carried into the local community group.

"This past year, major efforts were made in the field of home furnishings. Seventeen meetings were held on furniture arrangement and color in the home. Three meetings were held in refinishing of furniture and three on slip covers. A total of 449 women attended these meetings."

"As a carryover from the kitchen project offered two years ago, eight result kitchen demonstrations were set up and completed."

"Other projects carried on during the home, preparation of foods for freezing, pressure cooker testings, sewing machine clinic, Christmas at Home meeting, handicraft (making of trays), Women's Camp and an Achievement Meeting."

"A total of 2229 women were reached in the home demonstration program this past year. Approximately 1000 different homes were influenced. A total of 36 leaders assisted in carrying out this phase of the program."

Many From County At Breeders Meet

A number of swine breeders from Fayette County were in attendance at the annual meeting of the Ohio Breeders and Feeders Association, held Friday at Plumb Hall, Ohio State University.

Officers for the coming year for all breed associations and for the State Breeders and Feeders Association were elected.

Recommendations were made relative to the Swine Show at the Ohio State Fair, and judges were endorsed for the State Barrow Show.

Director of Agriculture Howard Foust spoke to the group.

Among those attending from Fayette County were the following: Ray Fisher, Joe Fisher, Robert Owens, Charles McCoy, Paul Shepherd, Irvin Yeoman, Earl Harper, Charles Miller, William McFadden, Billie McFadden, John McFadden, E. A. Saville and son, George Smith, Chester Straley and W. W. Montgomery.

The Nation Today

BY JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31—(AP)—Wait a minute before you start naming the most important man of the past 50 years.

It may turn out he's a man you've never heard of, or thought much of, in the years between 1900 and 1950.

It's happened before. So just leave a little room on the end of the list for an unknown or two.

He may have been a genius who died unrecognized in the past 50 years, leaving behind what seemed to be a dull scientific paper.

Yet, someone may stumble across it in the next 50 years, realize its importance, and that obscure paper may change man's history and thinking.

Or, you may be passing over some one who, in the past 50 years, seemed like a crackpot trouble-maker. Yet, the seeds he planted in other men's minds may come to strange and terrifying flower some day.

This week I went up to the congressional library to look through newspaper files of 50 years ago. I searched a number of them.

I wanted to see what people then thought were the big names and big events in the 100 years between 1800 and 1900.

I found yards of stories. And the lists of important 19th century men were pretty obvious.

Napoleon was there, of course. So was Charles Darwin and the effect he had had on men's mind about evolution. Thomas Edison was there.

But nowhere could I find the name of Karl Marx. He was born in 1818 and, since he had died in 1883, was dead 17 years by 1900.

He'd been mixed up in a lot of socialist squabbles. He was a stormy character who had a lot of intellectual fights.

He had done a lot of writing and he talked of the eventual dictatorship of the proletariat.

But he had died in 1883, no proletarian dictatorship had appeared, and socialism had been slapped down soundly.

Perhaps he was as vague as that—if they thought of him at all or ever knew of him—in the minds of the experts who looked back 100 years and made their appraisal of men and events in the 19th century.

But—it was Marx who laid the foundations upon which the Russian Bolsheviks, who knew his writings well, set up Communism, the great revolution of our time.

The experts didn't foresee what lay ahead for the 20th century, and Marx's hand in it. At least, the ones I read didn't.

And then there was the Augustinian Abbot in Austria, Gregor Mendel. He didn't get mentioned in the 100-year roundups but that was more understandable.

He was an obscure monk who died in 1884, the year after Marx. But—between 1851 and 1868 did a lot of research on the things plants inherit from one another.

The results of his work remained buried away, unknown, until around 1900 when they were brought to light by other scientists. His work now has had a profound effect upon scientific knowledge of life.

It was that almost-lost work of his that opened the door to understanding what men, animals and plants inherit from the ancestors, like tallness, shortness, blue eyes, dark eyes, skin color.

So—when you draw up your list of important men between 1900 and 1950, just remember some of the most important may not be recognized for another 100 years.

Farmers Reap Benefits of Better Soil

Soil No Longer Is Considered Dead, Sterile Matter

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31—(AP)—American farmers have reaped great gains because they have stopped considering their soil as simple, dead and sterile matter.

Instead, they now look upon it as something that undergoes constant change—partly natural, partly man-made.

Each small clump of ordinary soil in the field or garden contains roots of living plants, small animals, and billions of micro-organisms such as bacteria and fungi. It is a combination of solid inorganic matter, dead organic matter, living organic matter, water soluble salts and air.

The new realization of this, say agriculture department soil experts is playing a big role in the ability of farmers to produce bigger crops and better quality crops.

Each year, the experts say, more and more farmers are learning to adapt scientific information about soil to their own use.

Most farmers recognize now that there are thousands of different types of soil, varying widely in the kinds of crop they will grow. Many are learning that they have been trying to raise the wrong kinds of crops for their soil.

Wide soil variations occur within a county and often in individual farms.

To help the farmer get the most out of his soil types, agricultural engineers have devised machines and techniques for soil usage under different conditions of climate, topography and other conditions.

Because techniques based on their findings are being put to use on many farms throughout the country, productivity is returning to many fields where declining fertility cut yield.

A recent agriculture department report says that on "hundreds of thousands of farms in the eastern part of the United States, the soil is much better today, as a result of good soil management, than it ever was under natural conditions."

The experts also report that farmers are becoming better informed as to the role of soil moisture in crop production. Although no successful way has yet been found to make it rain, methods are being devised to make better use of what moisture nature hands out.

the nutritious foods that we like best.

5. Animal agriculture is one of our best guarantees for continued prosperity and stability.

These are some of the big things that are pointed out in this publication, and here is another that merits a place in this column:—

Watch production costs; look for cheaper or faster ways of getting things as fertilizer for they make jobs done don't cut on such things as fertilizer for they make you money; use short-time feeding programs so as to get a quick "turn over." Winter cheaper and feed on summer pasture. A cow and calf operation looks pretty safe for farmers. Produce more pigs—the corn, hog ratio should remain satisfactory.

GRASS SILAGE
W. G. Wharton, Hillsboro RFD, has found grass silage satisfactory for his herd of high producing dairy cattle, many of which are registered.

He opened his silo about the middle of August and began feeding the cattle when the pastures began failing so he prevented a reduction in the milk flow.

This silage is made from clover and timothy that is cut when about 1-3 of the blossoms are in bloom.

Mr. Wharton fed some hay when the cattle were on the pasture, and considers it a very good farm practice.

MODERATION
Some people never seem to learn the law of moderation and

Room and Board

By Gene Ahern

how important it is in all our varied walks of life.

If we can be moderate in our sleeping, eating and working, and even take our pleasures in moderation, we'd all live much longer wouldn't we? And we wouldn't have so much heart trouble and so many premature deaths from heart attacks. Most American people work too hard, too long, and play too fast, too long and die long before their time, with heart trouble, with the exception of the homemakers, many of whom go on and live very lonely lives playing both the father and mother's part.

ODDS AND ENDS WORK

Work is man's great function. He is nothing, he can do nothing, he can achieve nothing, fulfill nothing, without working. If you are poor, work. If you are rich, continue working. If you are burdened with seemingly unfair responsibilities, work. If you are happy, keep right on working. Idleness gives room for doubts and fears. If disappointments come, work. If your health is threatened, work. When faith falters, work. When dreams are shattered and hope seems dead, work. Work as if your life were in peril. It really is. No matter what ails you, work. Work faithfully, work with faith. Work is the greatest remedy available—for both mental and physical afflictions.

said it is necessary for a plan to be worked out so that runs are not too long. He reported to the city council of Washington C. H. Wednesday night that he had turned thumbs down on a proposal for his department to serve Concord Township, where some runs would be for ten miles.

Turns Down Aid Plan

In turning down the proposal for a mutual aid contract between Concord Township and Washington C. H., Fire Chief Hall said the force at the department here was inadequate as well as the equipment to provide protection for additional territory.

"This department, as well as the city . . . wishes to cooperate with townships . . . in every way possible but without more firemen or the addition or establishment of more departments within the county, I do not think it advisable to contract further fire protection areas," his statement read.

As the situation now stands Green, Perry and Concord townships have all voted one-mill levies for the purchase of fire fighting equipment.

Fire protection leaders hold out a hope that township trustees can work out agreements to provide protection to these townships. They feel that if coverage is provided for these three townships, located in the southwest part of

Cedarville Man Has Record Yield

A. B. "Doc" Evans of Cedarville, has produced a record crop of U. S. 13 this year, Evans, a well known breeder of Hampshire hogs on his Ferndale farm near Jamestown, reports that he has always had it is goal to raise 125 bushels of corn to the acre; but up to this year he had never been able to make it.

The record was made in a field of U. S. 13 of which five acres were sampled with an average yield of 136.93 bushels per acre, with one plot in the field going as high as 148.9 bushels per acre, reports state.

The seed was purchased from Harold Mark, Fayette county, and was the large and medium flat grades of this hybrid. The field has originally been in clover with 20 per cent super phosphate and with 2-12-6 fertilizer applied on the row in the corn. It was planted 8 inches apart in the rows with 40 inches between rows. Evans states that he believes that thick planting pays on his type of soil with his fertility level.

the county, other townships will later vote to join in a plan of fire protection. Their eventual goal is to have the entire county covered by a program of rural fire protection.

HOW THE FARM FAMILY USES ITS MONEY

With a somewhat lower net income in view for the farm family in 1950, our interest turns to ways in which farm families use their money for living.

Family living patterns, once established, are not easily changed. Studies show that the heaviest spenders for family living were the families that had experienced income decreases. Expanded family living expenditures seem to follow increased incomes, but the reverse is not true. Retrenchment in family living expenditures does not always follow income cuts.

Many farm families are accustomed to incomes that vary from year to year and they tend to adjust their expenditures to an expected average income over a period of years rather than adjusting just to one year's net income. Then too, purchases of family durable goods are often spread over several years by using savings or buying on credit rather than paying for them out of current income.

Overall family living expenditures then, are not expected to be cut as quickly or as much as overall cut in farm income.

The kinds of spending that might be cut, according to studies, are those expenditures for gifts and contributions, recreation and for furnishings and equipment.

Many farm families, the last few years, have acquired long-wanted household equipment and furnishings and improvement of the house itself. Continued expenditures for these can be expected on the part of many, however.

The living expenditures of 64

Ohio farm families, averaging four, in 1948 follows:

Life insurance, savings, $125; food, $425; clothing $227; furnishings and equipment, $225; household supplies and service $72; fuel, ice, light, phone, $162; house and grounds, $173; transportation, $191; health, $124; gifts, benevolences, org., $204; education, $55; recreation, $34; personal, $64; other, $7. Total, without savings $1963. Total, with savings $2088.

In 1940, the total living expenditures for a group of families similar to the group above, were $892.

Robbers Enter Home And Hold Up Family

TOLEDO, Dec. 31—(AP)—FOUR men invaded a private home in nearby Holland last night and robbed the occupants of $250, deputy sheriffs reported. The victims were Mr. and Mrs. Loren Patton and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Chortie of Sawnton (Fulton County). They were locked in a closet after the gunmen ransacked the house.

Better and Less Costly Government Needed

For the first time in our history, the executive department budget makers will have a comparative budget prepared by a member of the United States Senate to check against their own figures when Congress reconvenes in January. Senator Harry Byrd, Virginia Democrat, and one of the leaders in the effort to get cheaper, more efficient government services for the taxpayers of America, has set up his own working model of a sound budget. For the past sixteen years Senator Byrd has been a student of our expenditures, and his approach to economy cannot be challenged on the ground of either political bias or senatorial immaturity.

Each time in the past when the federal budget has been submitted to Congress, it has been flung down with a defiant argument, "Show us where it can be cut." Now the "show us" boys will be shown in black and white.

The Byrd budget calls for a maximum of $36 billions instead of the $45 billions anticipated from the White House. It calls attention to the alternative facing Congress of levying an additional $7 billion in taxes or preceding indefinitely along the pathway of deficit financing which has been so vigorously criticized in recent years.

In short, we shall have the beginnings of one of the biggest domestic issues of 1950--the question of when the "spenders" are to be stopped in their reckless drive towards national bankruptcy. Waste and inefficiency in government are synonyms. It is about time we made real strides towards replacing them with sound spending and efficient services.

No Equality Under The Law

Thurman Arnold who gained a national reputation as a "trust-buster" during the Roosevelt Administrations, has urged Congress to bring labor unions under the Federal anti-trust laws. His testimony was given before a Senate Committee which is investigating monopolistic labor practices, with particular reference to the coal industry and John L. Lewis' imposition of a three-day work week for the miners.

Mr. Arnold told the committee that the three-day week was initiated to create a coal scarcity and thus place the union in a favorable position for "the next strike." He cited a list of what he believes to be illegitimate labor practices, and said that "the most dangerous of all" is the use of union power to fix prices and limit production.

Mr. Arnold is not alone in these views. Senator Robertson, who heads the investigating committee, described the imposition of the short work-week as "a bald, overt act to control production and prices." In an editorial dealing with the problem, the New York Sun said that "our present lawmakers have been remiss in failing to make labor as well as management equal under laws against action in restraint of trade." And John D. Battle of the National Coal Association went straight to the heart of the matter when he said, "If the power rests with the union to decide how many days an industry . . . can use its facilities to produce, then we have reached that stage where all of us understand that we live and function at the discretion of the labor unions and that there is no equality under the law."

We learned long ago that industrial and financial monopolies had to be outlawed if the free enterprise system was to survive. Now it is labor monopolies, with their callous disregard of the public interest, that menace our free institutions.

Mid-Century Still One Year Away

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK. —(AP)—If you plan to stay up to toast the dawn of the mid-century, be sure to put plenty of ice in your drink.

Why? because you will still have 365 more days to wait.

Yes, that's right. The 20th Century won't officially reach the half-way mark for another year--on the New Year's morn starting 1951, not 1950.

It sounds crazy, and I think it is crazy but that's the truth of the matter.

I know because I like most everyone I assumed that our century would be half-gone at the close of this month. And I wrote a piece that began:

"The 20th Century reaches the halfway mark Jan. 1—but half-way to where?"

Well, I couldn't have stirred up more of a hornet's nest if I'd denounced Santa Claus as an itinerant bum. Readers and editorial writers across the land wrote, some in pity, some in anger pointing out I was as wrong as sin.

A great religious revival had occurred in the Nineties, under the leadership of Dwight L. Moody with whom was associated Ira D. Sankey. Moody was an evangelist orator; Sankey was a hymn-singer. It is impossible in 1950 even to estimate the force that these men released in their generation. Their style of religious preaching was followed by many others who travelled over the country and some of them to other countries. The most interesting in the early years of the century was Billy Sunday

"There is no year zero," they said in substance. "The twentieth century began on Jan. 1, 1901. It will be 50 years old on Jan. 1, 1951, and it will end on Dec. 31, 2000."

And a check showed these write-in readers were right in their remarks as usual. At least the Naval Observatory in Washington, the Haden Planetarium, the World Calendar Association and Webster's unabridged dictionary all bore their arguments out. The mid-century actually doesn't arrive until the end of next year.

But most people tend to think the other way. The present fuss was as nothing to the furore that arose at the end of the last century.

There was a real national controversy then. Most people thought the night of Dec. 31, 1899 would make the close of one century and the birth of another. No, said the experts, the 19th century won't end until Dec. 31, 1900.

But the people said to heck with the experts and went right ahead and held great wakes long enough—it was time to get on with another century.

Mark Sullivan, who told of the controversy in the first volume of "Our Times," though they were right. He wrote:

"January 1, 1900 appeals to the human imagination, seems to the eye, and sounds to the ear, more like the beginning of a century than does January 1, 1901."

And doesn't Jan. 1, 1950, sound mid-century than Jan. 1, 1951? Many magazines and newspapers are putting out mid-century more like the beginning of the editions on the theory that most people feel that way about it.

Theoretically, they could be right. As Time Magazine points out, scholars believe the 6th century monk Dionysius Exiguus made a mistake of from one to seven years when he began the custom of dating the calendar from the birth of Christ. So this could really be 1950 or 1956 or—

But don't let's get into that argument.

Right or wrong—and officially it appears we're wrong—I'm going to drink a mid-century toast tomorrow night.

My feeling is that even if the 20th century isn't 50 years old, well-it is high time that it start.

So, a Happy New Half Century to you plus a year—and that makes it official!

Things Have Changed With Times

By George E. Sokolsky

In 1900, the social center of American life was the church. The American people were religious, deeply attached to their various sects, reading the Bible not only in church but even at home. Prayer at table or in the parlor was not unusual. Many American Christians sects were "fundamentalist," that is, they accepted literally every word in the Old and New Testaments as revealed truth. The largest number of churchgoers among the Protestants were Methodists.

A great religious revival had occurred in the Nineties, under the leadership of Dwight L. Moody with whom was associated Ira D. Sankey. Moody was an evangelist orator; Sankey was a hymn-singer. It is impossible in 1950 even to estimate the force that these men released in their generation. Their style of religious preaching was followed by many others who travelled over the country and some of them to other countries. The most interesting in the early years of the century was Billy Sunday with his song leader, Homer Rodeheaver, whose trombone is a living memory to anyone who ever heard it.

Of course, there were rationalists, agnostics, atheists, socialists and anarchists who conducted a steady attack on religion. Undoubtedly the greatest orator in American life in the later decades of the 19th century was Robert Ingersoll, the rationalist, out of Peoria, Illinois, the same city that gave America Monismor Fulton Sheen, the greatest orator of the Roman Catholic Church today.

Such rationalists as Emma Goldman, the brilliant anarchist, travelled the country attacking God and the Bible, as the evangelists spoke God's word.

Only a nation deeply religious could have devoted itself pro and con to this debate, which headed up in the Scopes trial at Dayton, Tennessee in 1925, over evolution. The contestants being William Jennings Bryan, often Democratic candidate for president, and Clarence Darrow, the lawyer. It was a conflict between fundamentalism and modernism between religious faith and the current version of science. The entire country was stirred by this trial, the newspapers covering it plentifully and often heaping ridicule on the state of Tennessee which forbade the teaching of evolution.

Young intellectuals, even among the clergy, at the beginning of this century, were influenced by a European literature, hardly read in 1900. Ibsen, Breuer, George Bernard Shaw, Tolstoy, Matthew Arnold and a host of others were devoured. They were reading Thomas Huxley's lectures and among the clergy, the higher criticism, emanating from Germany, deeply influenced by Schlegelmacher, produced a profound impression.

Protestant Christianity swerved in many places from a religion of the Bible to an ethical system, which, while accepting Jesus as among the great moral teachers of the human race, devoted itself more to social service. Many clergymen ceased to preach with texts from the Bible; they turned rather to discussions of plays, books, politics. The sermon became the sole attraction of their services. The church was kept engaged during every day of the week, but as much as a social center as a religious institution.

At the same time, the tremendous emphasis on science, particularly the biologic sciences, broke down the authority of the Bible among young people in the early decades of this century. During prohibition, especially as a result of the moral horrors of the jazz age, with its bathtub gin and the unbelievably careless conduct of parents in the presence of their children, social restraints so essential in an orderly society were lessened. Divorce increased almost to its recognition as an institution. The mores of the nation seemed no longer to frown on illicit sex relations, newspapers and radio devoting considerable space to normal news reports of such relationships among persons whose fame was not a result of achievement but of "glamor."

As 1950 is approached, moral problems attract renewed attention. There is an extraordinary revival of interest in religion. Church attendance has increased and the Bible has regained its popularity, not the least significant factor in this resurrection of interest is the radio performance of "the great story ever told," the work of Fulton Oursler, layman converted to Roman Catholicism.

But the greatest factor of all was the war and its aftermath and the horrors of Marxian materialism as evidenced in Soviet Russia and its satellites.

Severe Itching Case Needs Attention

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
WE usually associate itching with a rash, but there are many instances of generalized itching in which the skin itself appears to be perfectly normal. In some cases, this itching comes and goes and is not a matter for any great concern. When it becomes so severe and persistent that mild scratching or rubbing does not relieve it, the condition is abnormal and requires investigation. In these cases, itching is frequently due to a diseased condition affecting the whole body. It will continue until the cause is found and relieved.

A whole series of serious ailments is associated with this type of itching. One of these is Hodgkin's disease, in which there may be enlargement of the spleen. Another is leukemia, a condition in which the white cells of the blood are greatly increased. The itching may be due to diabetes or it may even indicate the presence of cancer. Itching is also a common symptom of chronic kidney infection.

Generalized itching may also be produced by the presence of such parasites in the body as the tape worm or round worm. It may often occur in constipation, in bowel inflammation, and in ulcer of the stomach or bowel. Diseases affecting the liver or gallbladder are common causes of generalized itching. Hence, when this symptom is present, it is advisable to have an examination made to determine whether or not there is a jaundiced condition in which bile pigments collect in the blood and tissues. Inflammation of the liver, which interferes with the liver action in general, as well as gallstones and tumors of the liver, all may be responsible for the itching. Chronic infections of the bladder may also produce itching.

Persons who are sensitive to certain dusts, pollens from plants, or drugs and foods, may have itching of the skin without any rash.

Drugs which may cause itching are morphine, cocaine, quinine, or sedative or quieting drugs, such as the barbiturates.

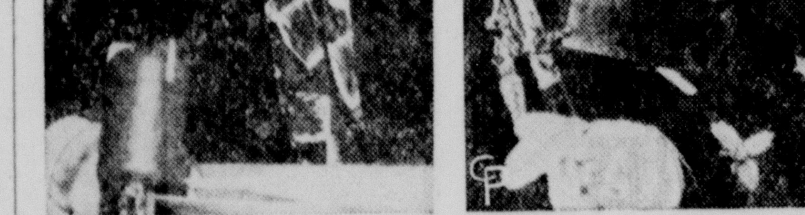

Infections in the teeth, tonsils, gallbladder, or appendix, as well as in the prostate gland, have also been reported as a cause of the generalized condition. Perhaps the most common cause is some type of nervousness.

In view of the large number of causes of generalized itching, it should not be neglected. A thorough study should be made at once to determine its source.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
A Reader: Will you please tell me what might help psoriasis?
Answer: The treatment for psoriasis consists in the use of various ointments, such as chrysarobin. Coal-tar ointment and treatment with ultraviolet light have also been found very helpful measures.

You should consult a skin specialist concerning proper treatment in your particular case.

Herbert Declines To Make Statement

CLEVELAND, Dec. 31 — (AP) — Former Gov. Thomas J. Herbert said today he had "no statement to make" on whether he may again seek the Ohio gubernatorial chair.

Questioned by a reporter, Herbert said he might have further comment in "the next couple of weeks."

The Republican leader preceded Gov. J. Lausche as the state's chief executive.

Informed persons in Columbus said Herbert definitely was debating whether to try again for the governorship; that he had conferred with several Republican leaders on the subject.

Paul M. Herbert, Columbus attorney and former lieutenant governor, can not be counted out of the Republican gubernatorial race at this time.

He, too, is toying with the idea of running for governor, an unauthoritative source disclosed.

Physician Is Held In 'Mercy' Slaying

GOFFSTOWN, N. H., Dec. 31 — (AP) — A prominent Manchester physician was held on a murder charge today in the mercy deathbed slaying of a 59-year-old cancer sufferer.

Dr. Hermann N. Sander, 40, father of two young daughters, was accused of taking the life of Mrs. Abbie Borroto, wife of an oil salesman, by injecting 10 cubic centimeters of air into her veins.

He pleaded innocent to a first degree murder charge yesterday and was held without bail pending grand jury action.

Hillsboro County Solicitor William H. Craig said Dr. Sander, in the presence of witnesses, orally admitted injecting the lethal dose of air as "an act of mercy."

Craig quoted Dr. Sander as saying the woman had suffered a long time and that members of her family had asked him if anything could be done to bring an end to her suffering.

The county solicitor added that Dr. Sander made no attempt to conceal the fact he gave the woman a fatal injection.

It was an entry over Dr. Sander's signature in the records of the Hillsboro County Hospital—where Mrs. Borroto died last Dec. 4—that led to his arrest.

Businessman Becomes a Clown One a Year for Sake of Charity

COLUMBUS. — One day every year—usually a few crisp days before Christmas—a number of businessmen and public officials of Columbus plank themselves on the street corners of the Buckeye capital and sell newspapers for as high as $5 a copy.

The oldesters send the regular newsboys home for a one-day vacation, then don colorful costumes and all kinds of zany makeup to hawk their papers in a gay, charitable manner. The grown-ups may shiver a little but their always manage to make the day one of the most colorful of the year.

Citizens of the city ignore the usual newspaper price of five cents and give the newspaper "boys" any amount of money they wish because they know it's 100 per cent for charity—it's for the Charity Newsies.

The charity newsies began their one-day sale for charity back in 1907 when the idea was hatched by a publisher, a comedian and an interlocutor.

C. C. Philbrick, publisher of the old Ohio Sun, and George Baker and Harry Shunk, two stars of the famous Al G. Fields minstrels, found themselves in a Columbus chophouse talking about the cold December weather which brought suffering to the poor and ill-clothed.

"I believe people would give if we just asked them in the right way," comedian Shunk said. So the men hit on the idea of a special newspaper.

The minstrel men applied burnt cork and 50 Newsies clowned on the street corners that year selling their papers. That's how the Newsies tradition of stunts began along with the annual sale.

Most of the "boys" who cavort on Newsie day remember what it was like in their youths, when many of them were none-too-well fixed, to stand on a cold and windy corner selling papers all day for a few pennies.

This year the Newsies estimated that they collected $35,000. The Newsies even set up a charity Newsie store. They stock the store with merchandise bought from their sale and "sell" it to the needy. Any child in the city who needs clothing can count on the Newsies for a sweater, stockings, gloves, etc.

That's why Newsie day in Columbus is sort of a holiday. The Newsies make the people enjoy giving because they get a big kick out of staid businessmen cutting up for charity's sake.

The weak in voice use megaphones and public address systems to remind the citizens of their duty. The strong in body breeze around the downtown area in antique cars, beating on cow bells or any other suitable noise maker.

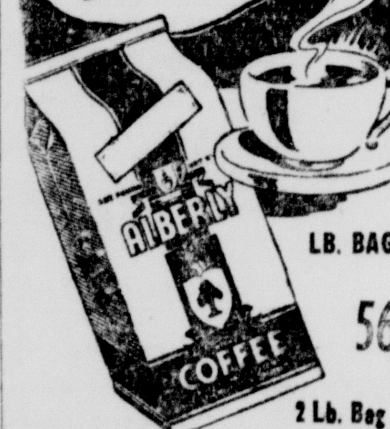

Columbus' morning newspaper breaks out in a rash of color on Newsie day and publishes a special Newsie paper. The regular final edition of the paper is slipped inside a two-page cover which explains the annual sale, where the money goes and how much it means to the underprivileged.

The businessmen and public officials donate their time and efforts to the cause. No salaries are paid and no one picks up loose change through expense accounts.

All requests for aid are checked immediately by members of the organization.

Poison Sprays Go On Trial January 17

Harm to Humans is To Be Ascertained
During Tests

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31 — A broad list of fruit and vegetable insecticides will go on trial here January 17.

The Food and Drug Administration wants to know whether they can be used without harm to humans. Chemical experts, insect experts, spokesmen for fruit and vegetable growers, representatives of chemical manufacturers and consumer groups are expected to attend the test.

The investigation grew out of reports that some insecticides are responsible for such present-day ailments as Virus X and infantile paralysis and that they have caused deaths.

Involved are such agricultural chemicals as DDT, arsenic and others.

Charged with protection of the tired but smiling lawyer said, "I have 30 requests for help to check on already and I just finished a hectic day at the office. But I'll start on them tonight and get a kick out of it."

The Newsies have had some famous help in their well-known drives. Freeman Gosden and Charles Correll, better known as Amos 'n' Andy, pitched in during a 1938 visit to the city.

Sophie Tucker, the "last of the red hot mamas," created a sensation with a few street corner songs in 1940 while she was in the city for an engagement. She sold a lot of papers.

Other famous people who have sold papers for the Newsies or contributed include Kate Smith, Sir Harry Lauder and Mary Garden.

Columbus hopes the Newsies keep selling their high-priced papers for a long time.

In short, he put the fine feminine formula of tears into public domain.

"There's nothing to it," he insisted, following a tear-jerking sequence in which he had pulled out all the stops.

"Quiver your chin, flex the cheek muscles, think of the many times men have been taken in by a pair of beautiful eyes brimming over with tears and the rest is a cinch."

Although the hilarious "Adam's Rib" is anything but a tearful tale, Tracy's weeps turn the tables on Katherine Hepburn in the story.

"Why should women have exclusive rights to nature's most potent weapon?" Tracy says.

FAYETTE THEATER

For the first three days of 1950, the Fayette Theater will show the comedy, "Adam's Rib," starring Spencer Tracy and Katherine Hepburn.

The fun is provided by a story about a woman who goes to extreme lengths to prove the equality of the sexes.

Following on the heels of this bill will be a single day stand Wednesday of "The Daring Cavalero" with the "Cisco Kid." Afire with all the usual adventure, this production is based on the famous character created by O. Henry.

Wednesday will also be the day for the personal appearance of Bradley Kincaid and his Kentucky boys on the Fayette stage.

"This Is My Affair" is due on the screen Thursday. Starring Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck, the show is being released again by the studios for an encore run.

The final two days of the week will find "Task Force" on the screen. The show stars Gary Cooper, Jane Wyatt, Wayne Morris and Walter Brennan.

carrier operations in the Pacific, it brings to the screen the epic drama of naval battles during World War II.

STATE THEATER

Starting a midnight show Saturday, the State Theater will open its billings for the week with a three day run of "Square Dance Jubilee" featuring many radio performers.

Co-featured will be the "Bowery Boys" in their latest production, "Angels in Disguise."

Wednesday and Thursday will be W. C. Field's days at the State as two of the actor's films take over the screen.

Showing will be re-releases of the comedies "Never Give A Sucker An Even Break" and "The Bank Dick."

The final billing at the State will feature "Trail of the Yukon" with Kirby Grant and Suzanne Dalbert.

Added attractions scheduled with this show are the final chapter of "King Of The Jungle" and the cartoon, "Lo The Poor Buffalo."

PALACE THEATER

The Palace Theater will show a double feature for two days starting New Year's eve.

Featured on this twin bill are the western, "Deputy Marshal" and "Southern Yankee."

Jon Hall, Frances Langford and Dick Foran are starred in the western which contains all the ingredients of rip-roaring action.

Holding up the excitement in the second half of this bill are Red Skelton and Brian Donlevy who star in the comedy set in civil war times.

Red is constantly on the run as a spy for the Union and the Confederate armies and takes plenty of time out for slap-stick.

Tuesday through Thursday another double bill moves on to the Palace screen.

"You Were Meant For Me" and "The Plunderers" will play through Thursday.

The final showing of the week will feature "Wild Bill Elliott" in the western, "The Fabulous Texan."

The final chapter of "Ghost of Zorro" and the cartoon "Fingal's Cave" are also scheduled on this bill.

1950 with all its challenging problems and opportunities demands that together we look forward. As we give you our heartiest good wishes for the New Year, it is with renewed determination to fulfill our responsibilities as an organization dedicated to public service.

The new O. H. Hutchings Station offers tangible evidence of the forward view of this Company. It bespeaks our faith in the future of the 24 Ohio counties we serve, and our constant effort to be ready always in advance of their electric power needs.

Other dramatic proofs of our constant planning for the future are the many miles of new natural gas distribution lines laid, the construction of new electric substations, the erection of new 66,000 volt transmission circuits and the installation of several million dollars' worth of distribution and general electrical equipment throughout the system.

During 1950, we shall continue to look forward with confidence in the future.

Nothing is more convenient than the New Year for a fresh start at life.
Best of luck
to all of you.

Club Members
Include Guests
At Dinner

Members of a recently organized bridge club entertained with a delicious dinner at the Washington Country Club on Friday evening and included their husbands as guests. Clever New Year's decorations decorated the table seating the group for the congenial dinner hour and the central adornment was a cherub bearing the placard "1950" heralding the New Year. Informal bridge was enjoyed during the remainder of the evening. Those making up the party were Mr. and Mrs. Willard Perrill, Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Willis, Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Belford Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Harford H. Hankins, Mr. and Mrs. S. Max Thomas and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fox of Clayton.

Troy Couple
Wed On Dec. 26

The First Baptist Church in Troy was the setting of a wedding on December 26, at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon when Miss Ruth E. Moats became the bride of Mr. Norman E. Schaefer with Rev. Ralph C. Zundel officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. A. Moats of Troy, former residents of Fayette County and the groom as the son of Mr. John H. Schaefer also of Troy. A reception was held at the Girls Civic League House in Troy immediately following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Schaefer are both graduates of Troy High School. The bride until recently has been associated with the First National Bank and Trust Company in Troy. The groom is attending the American Television School in Chicago, where the couple will reside. Mr. and Mrs. Orville Moats and family of near Mt. Sterling were among the guests at the wedding and reception.

WSCS Announces
All Day Meeting

The regular WSCS Church Day at Grace Methodist Church is scheduled for Wednesday January 4 with an all day meeting. The morning session opening at eleven o'clock will be devoted to reports of the several circles of the Society and a covered dish luncheon will be served at the noon hour. The afternoon program opening at 1:30 o'clock will be in charge of Mrs. Ed Fite program chairman. The first number will be an organ prelude by Miss Marian Christopher and the call to worship is: "He that loveth his brother abideth in the light and there is none occasion of stumbling in him." The hymn "Blest Be The Tie That Binds", will be followed with a poem "Discovery" by Toy-chiko Kagawa, read by Miss Mazie Rowe. Miss Christopher will play a piano solo and Mrs. W. W. Montgomery is to review the story "My Lantern" written by Michi Kawai. The program will close with the hymn "Am I A Soldier of the Cross" and the Mizpah Benediction.

Football Bowl Battles Now Get Under Way

BY FRED HAYDEN
NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—(P)—Now come the battle of the bowls—three today and a dozen on Monday—with 30 football teams ending the season's hysteria.

The two-day program offers one of the most enticing of all bowl weekends. There haven't been many year-ends when so many major attractions figured so close. On paper, anyway.

The 15 games are expected to draw some 650,000 fans and total receipts of more than $2,500,000.

Many more, of course, will sit in at a distance by television and radio, wherever available.

The play starts today with the East-West Shrine charity clash at San Francisco; the blue-gray contest at Montgomery, Ala., also an all-star affair pitting seniors from north and south against each other, and the Raisin Bowl meeting at Fresno, Calif., between San Jose (Calif.) and Texas Tech.

Rose Bowl Monday

Monday features are the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, the Cotton Bowl at Dallas, the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans and the Orange Bowl at Miami, Fla.

Kayoed Fighter Is Near Death

'Brain Contusion'
Doctor's Diagnosis

BY JACK HAND
NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—(P)—Carmine Vingo, 20-year-old Bronx boxer, is in St. Clare's Hospital with an even chance for his life after the first knockout loss of his brief career.

Dr. Vincent Nardiello, New York State Athletic Commission physician, said last night Vingo was in "very serious" condition after being stopped by Rocky Marciano, unbeaten Brockton, Mass. heavyweight, at 146 of the sixth round at Madison Square Garden.

Nardiello said X-rays of the injured fighter revealed "a brain contusion, a very serious thing—much more serious than a concussion, as if the brain had been torn."

Vingo's left side is paralyzed but it will take 24 or 48 hours before the real extent of his injuries can be determined. Much depends on his reaction after EST. Last rites of the Roman Catholic Church were administered during the night.

The boxer, who celebrated his 20th birthday Thursday, regained consciousness momentarily in the ring after he was counted out. But he lapsed again and was carried to his dressing room on a stretcher. Later he was removed to the nearby hospital where X-rays showed no signs of a fracture.

Referee Harry Ebbs, a former light heavyweight boxer, said Vingo banged his head hard on the ring padding when he went down from a left uppercut that sprawled him on his back.

The east rules a 7½-point favorite over the west and has one of its most powerful squads of all time. It will have Army's Arnold Galiffa pitching passes to another all-America, Notre Dame's end extraordinary, Leon Hart.

Among the west's aces are Lindy Berry of Texas Christian and Eddie LeBaron of College of the Pacific. At least 60,000 fans will gather for this battle.

The Blue-Gray grapple, with the Northerners relying upon their ground attack and the Southerners (favored by six points) excelling at passing, will attract a throng of about 22,500.

The biggest crowd of all—103,000—looms for Monday's Rose Bowl extravaganza in which Pappy Waldorf's Golden Bears of California are a 6-point favorite to beat the Big Ten's representative, Ohio State.

Sooners Favored

Oklahoma's Sooners, unbeaten and united in their 10 regular games and second only to Notre Dame in the AP standings, are favored by eight points to beat ninth-ranking Louisiana State (8-2-0) in the Sugar Bowl.

Rice is the choice by 7½ points over North Carolina in the Cotton Bowl, where attendance figures to be around 75,500.

The Orange Bowl will accommodate an estimated 65,000 for the game between Kentucky and Santa Clara. Kentucky's Wildcats are a 3-point pick with most odd-makers.

The Gator Bowl game at Jacksonville, Fla., where 36,000 persons are expected, brings together Missouri and Maryland and this one really has the experts stumped.

Rounding out Monday's bowl schedule are:

Sun Bowl, El Paso, Tex., Georgia (D. C.) vs. Texas Western;

MANY a college player gives his all for his Alma Mater and this guy went all out in his effort. The flying basketballer is Fred Naderhny of Yale. He took the spill into the laps of the spectators during a game with New York U. in Madison Square Garden, a game won by New York U. (International)

Cigar Bowl, Tampa, Fla., Woodford vs. Florida State; Pineapple Bowl, Honolulu, Stanford vs. Hawaii; Tangerine Bowl, Orlando, Fla., Emory and Henry vs. St. Vincent (Pa.); Oleander Bowl, Galveston, Tex., McMurtry (Tex.) vs. Missouri Valley; Salad Bowl, Phoenix, Ariz., Arizona State (Tempe) vs. Xavier (Ohio); Prairie View Bowl, Houston, Tex., Fisk vs. Prairie View.

West, which comes here Jan. 20 to take on the Lions, was swamped by Chillicothe, 66-46.

In a nearby class B, Mt. Sterling beat Clarksburg, 45-31.

Horizons Brighten For Lion Basketeers

Things were looking just a little brighter for the Lion cagers of WHS today as they prepared for their next home game Jan. 6 with Greenfield's Tigers.

For one thing, they have the sweet taste of victory still on their palates. They got it after an unbroken string of defeats at Wilmington Thursday night when they downed the Hurricane, 38 to 22.

Now that the ice has been broken, both the boys on the squad and their coach, Steve Lewis, are hoping for "broader smiles from Lady Luck."

Of one thing there can be no doubt, that win at Wilmington bolstered the Lion's sagging self-confidence.

Meanwhile, some of the teams that have conquered the blue and white basketeers have had the tables turned on them.

Circleville's Tigers were knocked off by Grandview Friday night in an overtime game on their home court, 42-39, by Columbus Grandview's team.

Xenia Central's outfit that handed the Lions an early season setback were handed a 37-35 beating by Dayton Fairview Friday night.

Lima's basketeers, who edged the Lions in a close game a couple of weeks ago, nosed out Toledo Woodward 51-47.

And for the future, Columbus

Air Attacks Likely In Blue-Gray Game

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 31.—(P)—College all-stars from above and below the Mason-Dixon line match football talent today in the 12th annual blue-gray game at Cramton Bowl.

A capacity crowd of 22,500 persons was expected for the game, which features some of the nation's top stars.

A battle between ground and air attacks was in the books, with the grays passing over the blues' admittedly superior line.

The north, on the other hand, front to clear the way for a bevy was ready to use its strength up of backs and pass only as a secondary weapon.

It could easily turn out the other way, however, with Tulane's all southeastern fullback, Eddie Price, and Texas' Randy Clay on the south's offensive team.

And Bernie Krueger of Illinois and Mel Olix of Miami (Ohio)—a couple of slick T-quarterbacks who can throw the ball around in their own right—might steal the aerial show from the rebel marksmen.

Art Houtteman, young Detroit right hander, participated in seven double plays during 1949, tops among American League pitchers.

Alumni to Play Good Hope Varsity

Stars of yesteryear at Good Hope school will put their aging muscles against those of the younger men of the school at 7:30 P. M., January 6, in two benefit games, with the proceeds to go to the Good Hope Garden Club and the Band Boosters.

Reserves at Good Hope will open the cage program at 7:30 P. M. with a game against some of the older grads. Following this game, the varsity squad at Good Hope will meet a team composed of the younger alumni.

Older grads have been asked to contact Marlin Anderson to arrange to play on the reserve alumni team. Dana Kellenberger and Loren Johnson have charge of organizing the varsity alumni team.

The teams will meet on an open date on the Good Hope schedule.

Sugar Tourney Won By Kentucky Cagers

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 31.—(P)—Kentucky's new basketball team, winner of the Sugar Bowl championship, may be the kind which plays just hard enough to win.

The sophomores and juniors of Coach Adolph Rupp defeated mighty Bradley last night 71-66 for the championship after trailing repeatedly. At halftime the score was 31-all but after intermission Kentucky smothered Bradley with a deluge of long shots. The score reached 67-54 be-

New Leaders In Head Pin Tournament

Two new leaders today paced the head pin tournament parade at Bowland.

Bob Whitaker smacked the maples Friday for a total of 115 to take over the lead in the men's division. That game brought him up out of a four-way tie for second place and better his previous high of 113 by two pins.

Still bunched behind Whitaker are Farrell Smith, Carl Noon and Fred Jones. They all still have 113 credited to them on the record.

fore Kentucky slowed down and Bradley heated up.

The late game rally by Bradley couldn't overtake the Kentuckians as seven-foot Bill Spivey and Jim Line continued to sink just enough to hold a five, six or seven-point lead.

In the first round game Thursday Kentucky gave Villanova its first defeat of the season 57-56 but only after an overtime period.

Tulane won the consolation game last night against Villanova 58-55. Bradley dumped Tulane from championship contention Thursday with a runaway 78-46 game.

But, there was little doubt that the alleys that all of them would try to better their positions before the end of the tourney which runs through Monday.

The perfect score in a head pin game is 120—each bowler gets just 12 balls and there is no count unless the head pin is knocked down.

Mrs. Betty Davis, meanwhile took over the lead in the women's division of the tourney with a count of 107—a score considered very good for the so-called weaker sex.

She, too, was in a four-way tie for second with 99 before her 107-game.

Still deadlocked behind her in second place with 99 each are Mrs. Bob Whitaker, Mrs. Virgil Lowe and Mrs. Bus Pollock of Mt. Sterling.

All the numerous bowling leagues, which took a holiday recess from their regular schedules, are to resume their battles Tuesday.

Marty Crandell, Syracuse University national collegiate heavyweight boxing champion, is the sixth national titleholder in the history of Orange boxing.

Babe Ruth hit 40 or more home runs 11 times during his career.

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE
JANUARY. Donald outside in the driveway at Kings Ridge stowing Susan's and his suitcases in the car, and Susan in the hall saying goodby to her family before Don drove her back to school on his own way to college. They were all there, Audrey, with dark circles under her eyes from sleepless nights; Frank, smoldering in silence; Elizabeth, tight-lipped; and Steven watchful. Only Susan was serene, cool and remote and completely poised as she moved from one to another dutifully presenting her cheek for a farewell kiss.

"Goodby, Frank. Goodby, Nanna. Goodby, Audrey."

"Susan!" The cry broke from her mother's throat. All very well for Elizabeth to say not to worry. That Gerry hadn't money enough, that he wouldn't dare, nor would Susan, do anything reckless or ill-advised. She knew Susan would dare anything. So what was it she was thinking? Hoping? Planning? Not once had she mentioned his name since that dreadful dinner, and the time for uneasy speculation had passed. Audrey must know.

"Yes?"

"What about Gerry?"

Susan's violet-blue eyes gazed with perfect calm back into her mother's face. She looked like an angel and she sounded like one as she answered sweetly, "Let's not discuss him, please. You're not interested."

"I am. Is he... Are you...?" He fingers Susan's wrist. Susan looked down at them, and then with quiet firmness loosened their and stood free.

"This is the thing in a nutshell," she said. "You see him one way. I see him another. And neither of us ever will change. So let's not argue. It can only get us into a broil." She moved to Steven.

"Goodby, Judge."

But he did not stoop to kiss her as she had expected. He stood, straight and tall, and his voice—his "legal" voice, as she used to call it when she was little—brought her to unexpected attention.

"You don't play fair, Susan."

"I don't play fair?"

"No. I feel a sincere admiration for Gerry. I feel a blood tie, also. I was earnest in wanting to help him. If he had proved himself out there in Texas..."

She interrupted. "But why way out there? Why not here?" She smiled proudly and shook her head. "It smelled. That's all. To us it smelled. We'd better skip it." And, nodding, she went out. A moment later they heard the car roar down the driveway. When the sound had died Frank spoke.

"She has us all by the nose. It's ridiculous."

Elizabeth, offering meagre comfort again, said sharply, "There's nothing to worry about, I tell you. They've got to have money, Susan knows that as well as I do."

"Susan doesn't know that," Audrey retorted. "She thinks nothing at all about money. She's always had too much. She thinks it grows on trees."

"Well, Gerry knows, then. He hasn't had too much."

"He's had so little he's learned to get along without it. And he wouldn't mind making Susan do the same thing." Audrey pressed her hands together and walked away from her mother. Elizabeth's eyes followed her, not in satisfaction.

Through her glasses on Country Club Ridge, Alicia saw the red roadster stop at the Inn, saw tion this time, but in commiseration. There was really nothing much worse than the agonies of suspense and mistrust your children could put you through.

Steven said nothing at all. He had hardly heard them. "It smelled. To us it smelled. That really wasn't fair. Not wholly. But Susan would never believe it, and he couldn't explain."

In the car Susan said to Donald, "I want to stop and speak to Gerry a minute, Don."

"Sure."

He waited outside while Susan ran up to Gerry's room. She came into it eagerly, full of love and high confidence, and wanting to go over once more the plans they had made. He would buy civilian clothes right away, wouldn't he? Good ones. Nice ones. Even if he had to pay a lot for them. They would help, she was sure. And he would keep on answering ads as he had promised. And going in for interviews? And he mustn't forget Tim was going to introduce him to the proper person at L.M.B. And what else? Oh, Alicia! If he got stuck, perhaps Alicia would have a suggestion. Or the Fergusons.

"And," she concluded, standing with both of her hands in his. "I'll call you at least once a week to find out how things are going. Friday night, probably. Or, anyway, Saturday. Because if everything falls here, I want to know. Then I'll ask Dr. Morgan what he can do. I'll tell him about you the minute I get back, of course. But I won't actually say anything until..." She surveyed him anxiously. "You'd rather it was that way, wouldn't you? You'd rather see what you can do first yourself."

"Much rather." He spoke a trifle wryly for he did not like the idea of Susan's Headmaster getting mixed up in his affairs. In spite of what she had told him, he had no affection for Headmasters.

Suddenly her briskness left her. "I don't like leaving you," she said, her eyes darkening. "I don't like leaving you at all. And that's not saying it very well."

"I know."

"Do you?" He felt her hands tighten. Then, with a lovely motion of yielding, she came into his arms and stood, her body vibrant against his, her breath warm on his cheek, her whisper broken and childish. "Oh, darling! Oh, Gerry, I love you so. I want you so. How can I live? How can I live?"

The toot of Donald's horn outside brought her back to herself. He watched her pull herself together, smile faintly and turn from him. Her dignity, her grace, her high, proud spirit, now so zealous on his behalf, but most of all her passion, as tumultuous and as pure as a mountain stream, did strange things to him. And after she was gone he stood where she had left him, his dark face showing the conflict within himself, the straining both toward and away from the high goal he had set. For, with her, he lost some of his strength and without her he lost some of his purpose. But he would hold to his resolve. With her by his side, he would crash into the Kings' select circle and force a welcome from them. He straightened, his face clearing. Yes, by Heaven! That was what he would do.

Through her glasses on Country Club Ridge, Alicia saw the red roadster stop at the Inn, saw

Susan flash in and, presently, come slowly out again. Susan was smiling and Susan was loyal. She thought, as she put the glasses down. But there was little that the child could do for Gerry without her family's cooperation. All day Alicia thought about it, and him, and her promise to befriend him as yet unfulfilled. She had meant that promise, but so far she had not found a way. They all looked too dangerous. The one she finally decided on was dangerous, too, but at least it might bring him into the house once more, for watching him at a distance was no longer enough. She wanted to hear his voice, perhaps feel his arms again. It was a hunger that gave her no rest.

That night at dinner, sitting at her end of the long table with Lester at his, she suddenly aware had lasted too long between Lester.

"Lester."

"Yes?"

His tone was as suave as ever but her senses warned her that he was prepared. He had been prepared and waiting for weeks. She knew it because not once had he mentioned Gerry's name since he had been a guest here. He was waiting for her to show her hand first.

With careful lightness she said, "Well, I've been thinking. And I was wondering if there was any way we could help... you could help I mean—young Gerald Barton?"

He put down his fork and looked at her a full moment before replying. Then, softly, his answer came.

"And why, if you please, should I help young Gerald Barton?"

"Simply because it would be a decent thing for you to do. That's the chief reason. It's not going to be easy for him, you know, to get a start. He's personable enough."

"You find him so?"

"She went on as if she had not heard, "but he lacks experience. And he knows nobody of importance."

"May I remind you that he knows Judge King?"

Alicia managed a careless laugh. "You're perfectly well aware how the Judge feels about him. He won't lift a finger. He doesn't like him."

Lester picked up his fork again and began patting his potatoes into a neat pile.

"Nor do I like him. Nor will I lift a finger for him," he said briefly.

"But that's rather ridiculous, isn't it? The Judge has a reason in Susan, perhaps, but you..."

The fork stopped its patting and Lester's head lifted again. Alicia saw his eyes, pale and flat and noncommittal in the cold narrowness of his face, and heard his voice, still soft and courteous, saying words that bit and stung and whipped.

"That is final. Except that I don't quite understand your interest in this young man. And, not understanding, I feel compelled to wonder if I may not have a reason, too? At any rate, if he ever appears on my place again, I will set the dogs on him. That, I repeat, is final."

"You don't mean that."

"I do mean it." He looked at her steadily, put down his napkin, rose and left the room.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31—(P)—
Dancing in 1950, along with five Monday bowl games, make up the bulk of radio's continuation of the three-day greeting to New Year's.

Television also will be celebrating, principally with rival network variety shows on NBC and CBS, while both radio and TV will have news reviews and previews.

Tonight's radio dancing parties will adhere to the pattern of the past by following midnight into the various time zones. The schedule:

NBC 11:30 to 4 A. M.—Seven cities, including Paris, with 14 bands; CBS 11:30 to 4 A. M.—15 bands in 11 cities; ABC 11:45 to 3 A. M.—Seven bands in five cities; MBS 11 to 4 A. M.—Seventeen bands from five cities.

The bowl games, all coast to coast on Monday, will be on these networks, with local telecasts shown in parenthesis:

CBS 1:45 P. M.—Orange at Miami, Santa Clara vs. Kentucky, Mel Allen and Connie Desmond announcing (WTVJ Miami).

NBC 2:30 P. M.—Dallas, North Carolina vs. Rice, Bill Stern (KRLL-TV and KBTW Dallas, WBAP-TV Ft. Worth).

MBS 2:30 P. M.—Gator at Jacksonville, Mary Wolf (WMBR-TV Jacksonville).

ABC 2:30 P. M.—Sugar at New Orleans, ABC 2:30 P. M.—Louisiana State, Harry Wismer and Jim Britt, their second week of weekend (WDSU-TV New Orleans).

CBS 4:45 P. M.—Rose at Pasadena, California vs. Ohio State, Red Barber and Carroll James (KFTV-TV Los Angeles, KFTM-TV San Diego).

Looking at the past and future will provide these items: Tonight—MBS 1:35 (local time) Five-minute New Year's newscast.

Sunday—MBS 11:30 A. M. National personalities discuss what "We Foresee in 1950." NBC 1 P. M. Commentary by ten newspaper publishers and editors. CBS 5 forty-five minute roundtable on "Mid-Century" by CBS commentators who have flown in from all parts of the world to participate. An identical program will be telecast by CBS-TV at 10 P. M. Sunday TV—NBC-TV 5 P. M. Hour's film review of 1949.

Judge Says Liquor Cause of Divorces

CLEVELAND, Dec. 31—(P)—
Judge Roy C. Scott estimated today that 60 per cent of the divorces and wrecked homes in greater Cleveland are caused by alcoholic beverages.

The common pleas jurist handled the uncontested divorce docket in the term just ended.

After liquor, the judge listed these reasons in order:

Bungled family finances, in-law trouble and differences in ages between husbands and wives.

Pay Increases For Dayton Bus Drivers

DAYTON, Dec. 31—(P)—
Pay raises for some 300 bus operators and maintenance men of the City Railway Co. were announced last night. A EEW contract effective Jan. 1 raises operators' base pay five cents, to $1.49 an hour, and maintenance workers' pay 10 cents an hour, to from $1.48 to $1.55, Henry Mead, company president said.

Liquor retailers must obtain local licenses before being granted state licenses in Illinois and Georgia.

EXCITING FILM FARE—A new western novel "Deputy Marshal" opens Sunday at the Palace Theatre. Pictured above are four of the principal players: Joe Sawyer, Dick Foran, Julie Bishop and Jon Hall. Frances Langford, the blonde songstress is co-starred. It's real blood and thunder excitement. Plus this swell second feature, Red Skelton and M-G-M's new starlet, Arlene Dahl, provide the love and laughs in "A Southern Yankee," which opens at the Palace Theatre Sunday. With Skelton playing his most howling role as a spy "for both sides," the comedy also stars Brian Donlevy, with George Coulouris heading the supporting cast.

THE STATE THEATRE presents a new double feature Sunday-Monday and Tuesday starting with a New Year's Eve midnight show Saturday. Feature No. 1 stars Don "Red" Barry, Spade Cooley and his band, Cowboy Copas, Dot Remy, the Broome Bros. and many more radio favorites in "Square Dance Jubilee." Also a new Bowery Boys feature will be seen "Angels in Disguise" starring Leo Gorcey.

McArthur Says

"In due course other nations will join you in this dedication, but meanwhile you must not falter. Have faith in your countrymen and other peoples who share the same high ideals. Above all, have in yourselves."

MacArthur made no reference to the Soviet Union, but in leading up to the defense portion of his message he did say that two basic, unresolved problems causing concern to every Japanese were:

"The global ideological struggle brought close to Japan by the Communist roll over China, and the international procedural conflict delaying call of a Japanese peace conference."

Student Nurse To Be Assigned To This County

Health Department
Cooperating With OSU
In Plan Started

The Fayette County Health Department has been chosen as one locality among seven areas in Ohio for the practical training of senior nurses who are interested in public health nursing. The nurses sent here and to the other training localities are to be selected from the School of Nursing at Ohio State University.

Agreement on details for local operation of the plan was worked out here Friday when Miss Anne Burns of the public health nursing department of the Ohio Department of Health met with Dr. Gordon E. Savage, head of the health department here and Miss Gretchen Darlington, senior nurse in the county department.

Accompanying Miss Burns to this city was Miss Harstine of the state department of health. She is identified with the hospital facilities division and made the trip especially to inspect the new hospital here. She stated she had heard so much about it she wanted to see it and was emphatic in her praise of its arrangements and possibilities.

Also attending the conference here was Miss Sarah Stokes, supervisor of public health nurses in Montgomery and Greene Counties. She will be identified with the new program on a consultant basis in both those counties and in Fayette.

The selection of the Fayette County Health Department as one of the localities where student nurses will receive practical training is a recognition of efficiency for the department here and is very complimentary.

Each senior sent out from OSU Nursing School for practical training in public health work will remain where assigned for a period of two months. At the end of that time she returns to school and another senior student is assigned to the same locality.

The first student nurse to be sent to this city will be Mrs. Josephine Maggi, Italian born, who is finishing her nursing training at Ohio State University. Quarters have been engaged for her at the S. R. Renick home, 226 East Market St. She starts her work here Wednesday, January 4.

The system by which a student nurse is assigned to obtain further training is regarded as a part of the course now being followed by the OSU School of Nursing and there is no expense involved for the county health department.

The plan for sending out senior nurses for practical work is a comparatively new departure for the Ohio State School of Nursing, but is regarded as offering a student nurse a valuable lesson in the public contact work which she later will face. It is a part of the curriculum in the four year course which gives the students, upon graduation, both RN (Registered Nurse) and Bachelor of Science degrees.

Police Court Justice Will Soon Be Known

Council Meets To Organize Monday
At 10 A. M.

Who will be the next police court justice in Washington C. H.? This is the question being asked by many, and apparently it is not known definitely by the five men who are eligible for the appointment.

Under the law, the police court justice must be one of the five council members.

Robert H. Sites, who has been a member of council since the city manager form was adopted in 1935, has also been police court justice most of that time, and has left a record in fines, fees and forfeitures collected that has never been equalled anywhere, insofar as is known.

Monday at 10 A. M., council, with one new member, Ronald K. Cornwell, will meet to organize, and the new police court justice will be named at that time for the chairman of council will be the police court justice.

Cornwell takes the place of Sites as a member of council. William Clarke, who was appointed to succeed Frank Snyder, following the latter's death last year, was elected to succeed himself.

Roy Baughn, Richard R. Willis and John Boone are the carry-over members of council.

One of the five men will be chosen justice.

Two of the men have stated definitely that they cannot hold the post by reason of their business, so the choice narrows down to three men, and they are Willis, Boone and Cornwell.

Inasmuch as the post is an important one, the choice for police court justice will be watched with interest by citizens generally.

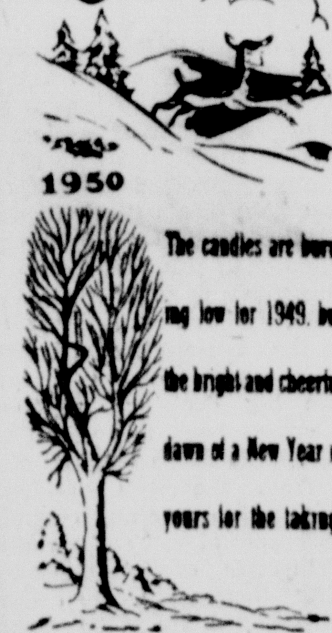

Incidentally, indications are that the present salary of $1200 paid the justice, will be increased considerably by council.

Wheeler Hoskins Laid To Rest Here

Funeral services were held at 2:30 P. M. Friday at the Gerstner Funeral Home for Wheeler Hoskins, with Rev. C. B. Tigner, pastor of the First Christian Church of Washington C. H., in charge.

THE LONGEST DAY

The longest day is said to be that of a mother with a young baby--from son-up to son-down.

Mother had better start that day with a good breakfast, with plenty of energy-building enriched . . . PENNINGTON BREAD toast.

As Old Father Time presents us with his new son, 1950-let us resolve to keep this child as happy and unstained as he is on the day of his birth . . . Let us nurture in him kindness, feed him wisdom, teach him tolerance and love for all his neighbors . . . making him a strong leader to guide his brothers in the-family of time.

May 1950 see the fulfillment of your desires and bring you every happiness.

School Board To Organize

Officers To Be Elected Jan. 10

Members of the Washington C. H. Board of Education will hold a reorganization meeting at their first get-together of the new year, it was announced today by Tom Christopher, president.

The meeting, which will be preceded by a dinner, will be held Tuesday, January 10.

At that time new officers for the board will be chosen and the two new board members, who were elected in the November 8 election, will be sworn in and their duties outlined to them.

The new board members are John Sagar, manager and owner of the Sagar Dairy, and Richard Waters, owner and manager of the R. S. Waters Supply Company. They will replace Leonard Korn and Ray Brandenburg, who did not choose to run again.

Members of the County Board of Education, elected in the November 8 election will hold their first meeting of the new year, January 21. The county board members include H. B. Lightle, Hugh B. Sollars and Nathaniel Tway.

Steals Christmas Tree From Cemetery

Because he stole a Christmas tree from the Greenfield Cemetery, Donald Eugene Pummil, 20, of Thifflin, must work in the cemetery until $45 is paid for the tree.

When discovery was made that someone had cut and carried off an evergreen tree in the cemetery, the trustees offered $10 reward for information leading to arrest of the thief.

Patrolman Sam McCullough, of the Greenfield police force, and Kenneth George, recalled having seen Pummil carrying a tree the evening of Dec. 21.

When questioned at his home Pummil admitted taking the tree. No formal charges were preferred against Pummil when he agreed to work and pay for the tree.
